SCCTC Students Get Involved in the Community

Good things are happening in the Carpentry & Cabinetmaking program at the Susquehanna County Career & Technology Center. For the State Level Skills USA Competition, three students led a community service project where student-made dog houses were donated to the True Friends Animal Shelter in Montrose. Students also collected food and other items to donate. Friday, February 19, 2016 was the date the students presented the donations to Dory Browning, Executive Director of the no-kill shelter. “Beau” the Rottweiler also came along to thank the students.

SCCTC Carpentry and Cabinetmaking Instructor Bruce Castelli said, “This project allows our students to give back to the community. Our goal is to instill a sense of pride that will lead them to community service well into adulthood.”

Dr. Alice M. Davis, Executive Director of the SCCTC added, “This is the ninth year that our students have made and donated dog houses to the shelter. It is an honor for us to give to the community in this way.”

The student-made dog houses are available to the public in exchange for a donation to the True Friends animal shelter in Montrose. Contact the shelter for details.
